

The HUMAN TRAFFICKING INSTITUTE

Empowering justice systems to decimate modern slavery at its source

DIRECTOR OF GOVERNMENT AND CORPORATE RELATIONS

Annick Febrey serves as Director of Government and Corporate Relations for the Human Trafficking Institute. In this role, she will serve as a bridge between the Institute's work and the U.S. government. In particular, she will work with members of Congress and other U.S. government leaders to help shape anti-trafficking policy and priorities. She will also work with corporations to explore opportunities for collaboration and partnership with the Institute.

ANNICK FEBREY

Annick previously worked for Human Rights First as senior associate for their anti-trafficking campaign, leading their advocacy efforts that led to passage of a bill that designated human trafficking prosecutors in every U.S. attorney district across the United States. She also helped manage Human Rights First's campaign ambassador program and served on Custom and Border Protection's civil society working group. During her tenure, Annick testified before Congress, the New York City Council and has been quoted in numerous print and online news sources.

Previously, Annick served as the Policy & Advocacy Advisor with Oxfam America's Aid Effectiveness team, advocating for policies to make U.S. foreign assistance more transparent and accountable. Prior to Oxfam America, Annick was the Legislative Affairs Manager for International Justice Mission. She successfully led the campaign to ban human trafficking on U.S. government contracts, which resulted in an executive order signed by the President in September 2012 as well as a law passed by Congress in December 2012.

Earlier in her career, Annick worked for the White House Fellows Program following nearly two years mobilizing grassroots constituencies for a Presidential campaign. She began her career working for the U.S. Senate Committee on Health, Education, Labor and Pensions. Annick received a B.A. in policy studies from Dickinson College. She resides with her spouse and dog in Washington, D.C., and is studying to become a winemaker.
